MOTION

I MOVE that the Cincinnati Police Department only use measured detection systems for traffic violations and not speed estimates.

Councilman Wendell Young

STATEMENT

In light of the recent Ohio Supreme Court ruling that Police Departments may legally use eyeball-estimates for speeding violations, I believe that it is in the best interest of both our citizens and our police department, to only use reliable, verifiable methods of traffic enforcement. Just because we can doesn't always mean that we should, and I believe that human estimates are not our best option when it comes to enforcing the law.
